Scope and content note

The Dow collection consists of manuscript material relating to David McKenzie Dow (1870-1953). The collection also contains items relating to David's son Hume Dow (1916-1997), and his father John Lamont Dow (1837-1923).

David McKenzie Dow studied at Dookie Agricultural College and then worked briefly with the Department of Agriculture. In the 1890s and following his father's interest in politics, David contested several elections in the seat of Kara Kara (St Arnaud, Victoria). Based in Melbourne, he followed a career in journalism and travelled to the United States as an agricultural journalist (1907). Moving into public service, David worked as Commonwealth Publicity Officer for the Prime Minister's department (1920-1924). He held the position of Official Secretary for Australia in the United States (1927-1931), and then continued as acting Commissioner General until March 1938.

David's published works include Australia Advances (1938) and Melbourne Savages: a history of the first fifty years of the Melbourne Savage Club (1947). David held a long association with the Savage Club, acting as committee member and gaining life membership (1938).

The collection features personal and professional correspondence, newspaper clippings, photographs, certificates and other personal papers.

Savage Club material includes correspondence, advertising material and other publications such as annual reports. The collection contains chapter drafts written for David's book, Melbourne Savages. Letters of response from club members and newspaper clippings regarding the book's publication are also included here.

Also in the collection are miscellaneous publications collected by the Dow family including books, pamphlets and programs. A number of other miscellaneous items such as notes, radio transcripts, business cards and theatre tickets, etc. are also found in the collection.

Manuscript material has been divided into a numbered series and further divided into specific folders. The collection consists of four boxes. Further detail can be found in the lists below.
