Exciting news for Deakin's School of Nursing and Midwifery

In June 2022 the Burwood campus opened five new simulation wards, additional student practice spaces, treatment rooms and high-fidelity simulation spaces. These new teaching and learning facilities will provide a fantastic student experience in a fully simulated new hospital environment, preparing students to manage challenging scenarios to ensure quality and safe patient care. This project included co-contributions from the Victorian Higher Education State Investment Fund (VHESIF).

Both our Geelong Waterfront and Warrnambool campuses also have high fidelity simulation spaces and 3G mannikins providing crucial hands-on practice for students of our Bachelor of Nursing and nursing combined courses across multiple campus locations.

All three campuses will be running tours of their state-of-the-art facilities during our Campus Open Days – Geelong Waterfront Sunday 7 August, Warrnambool Sunday 14 August and Melbourne Burwood Sunday 28 August.

Launching the new Bachelor of Arts

Have you heard?

Deakin has a new Bachelor of Arts that kicks off in 2023.

To help students accelerate their development, we've built into the degree Your Future Career units. In these units, students will build their leadership skills, expand their entrepreneurial mindset – and can engage in networking opportunities with our industry partners.

And to inspire students to make their mark in our rapidly changing world, the degree has a fresh focus on addressing global challenges. Such as the climate crisis. And the scourge of fake news.

Students will sharpen their communication skills, develop nuanced perspectives on social issues and expand their critical thinking to imagine and build a better future for all.

During this degree, we also encourage students to direct their development and pursue their passions.

They can combine over 30 majors and minors – covering everything from history, philosophy, sociology and politics to journalism, design thinking and strategic advertising. And they'll be offered new minors like web design, film and TV studies, visual arts, social media, sport journalism, and animation'.

The new Bachelor of Arts is made for curious minds and future leaders who want to solve the challenges of tomorrow – today.

Therapy dogs bring calming cuddles to Deakin res in study week

As Trimester One ended, students across Deakin Residences were busy preparing for exams and completing assignments. Though it's the culmination of months of rewarding learning, Study Week (or SWOTVAC) can be a stressful time, so we called on some canine companions to provide some much-needed downtime.

Volunteer handlers from the Delta Society brought their therapy dogs to campus in Burwood and Waurn Ponds, allowing students to interact with these well-trained pooches and each other. From Jack Russells to Border Collies, Poodles to Greyhounds, the group of dogs was diverse and for the students it was an opportunity to de-stress, catch up and enjoy a moment of calm.

While it might have seemed like incidental fun for the students, research shows that sessions like this can help to improve physical well-being, decrease anxiety, ease social isolation and increase positive mood.

When asked about their experience of the sessions, students responded positively, with Waurn Ponds resident Jayden saying "It was a really nice break from study and a good excuse to hang out with friends and pat the doggos."

Burwood students with Therapy Dog Millie and handler Richard

The volunteer handlers were impressed by our students' interactions with the therapy dogs, with handler Richard saying, "The reaction we get is amazing. The smile comes on their face and they just relax. It's a distraction from their day-to-day pressures and just being able to relate to the dogs."

This is an important part of the health and wellbeing programming covered within Deakin Residential Services' Student Experience Pillars. We look forward to welcoming these beautiful dogs back in the future.

Beyond the Field - Sport Update

Deakin prepares students for Australia's 'Golden Decade of Sport'

A new national survey by Deakin University has revealed that while nearly all Australians (97%) believe that Australia is a sporting nation, there is still low awareness of the projected industry growth and career potential in sport.

The survey comes as Australia is set to enter 'The Golden Decade of Sport' with the nation anticipated to host 10 major global sporting events over the next ten years, generating thousands of job opportunities for those interested in sport-related fields.

'Golden decade' of sport ahead for Australia | this.

Staffing Update

It is with great sadness that we are announcing the departure of Jacqui Thompson our Program and Events Coordinator. Jacqui has been part of the Future Students Team since 2016 and has been pivotal in the development and delivery of the Deakin Accelerate Program of work.

Luckily for Deakin, Jacqui will be staying in the University and will now be working as the Higher Degree by Research Support Coordinator for the Faculty of Arts and Education, coordinating the PHD and Masters by Research program. She is excited to be supporting students at the other end of their journey, going from prospective students to research students.

We wish Jacqui all the best in her new role.
